CANADIAN JEWRY DEMANDS GOVERNMENT RECOGNIZES RIGHTS OF ALL MINORITIES

Montreal, (CJN). — The Jewish community urged the Canadian Government to allow nothing to denigrate the position, rights and privileges of Canadians of non Anglo-Saxon and non-French origin and to study the necessity of amending the British North America Act to include inalienable rights of citizenry in a brief submitted to Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson in Ottawa, last week. The submission was signed by Michael Garber, Q. C., president, Canadian Jewish Congress; J. Irving Oelbaum, chairman, National Executive Committee; and Saul Hayes, Q.C., executive vice president.

ANOTHER 'LOOK AT LAW' SUGGESTED

● The brief also focussed attention on the plight of Jews of Morocco and urged that ways and means be found to facilitate their entry to Canada.

● Noting that "While Canada probably is less plagued by agitators trying to stir up latent animosities and hatreds than some other countries," the brief stated that "we do have in Canada some incipient movements which, in times of stress under certain conditions, could seriously endanger the health of the body politic," and urged that "another look" be taken at the "provisions of the criminal law as to whether they are adequate to meet all present and future challenges."

● Stressing that Canadian Jewish Congress is a veteran supporter of the need in Canada for a Bill of Rights, the brief stated:

"The present Bill of Rights, cannot be fully protective unless and until it forms part of the written Canadian Constitution by being incorporated into the BNA Act and it is, therefore, recommended that in due course careful consideration be given to such a proposal."

The brief continued: "We firmly believe that such a proposal will not complicate the delicate problem of federal provincial rights but can be examined and implemented for such matters as are by common consent the concern of the federal areas of government."

CONCERN OVER RUSSIA

On the subject of Human Rights, the brief submitted "the important issues on eliminating religious intolerance and racial discrimination" which were passed by resolutions of the Geneva Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) meetings should be put forward before the Human Rights Commission immediately and further urged that Canada at the U.N. General Assembly ask for such a reference to ECOSOC and invite a 1964 Commission to meet in Canada.

The brief also voiced its concern with the widespread and continuing reports that the Soviet Union persists in denying its Jewish citizens the rights and facilities which are granted to other religious and national groups and requested the "Canadian Government be used to raise these issues at appropriate times in appropriate forum with the hope that the religious and cultural liberties of the Jewish community of the USSR be restored."

Other matters raised in the brief included Property Nationalized by Poland; Heirless Property and Israel and the Mid-East.

The Canadian Jewish Congress delegation was led by Mr. Garber and included: Monroe Abbey, immediate past chairman of the national executive committee; Lavy M. Becker, chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee; Samuel Harvey, treasurer; Harold Lande, Q. C., vice president; and Mr. Hayes (Montreal); Saul Cherniack, vice president; David Slater (secretary) (Winnipeg); and Sydney M. Harris, Q.C, chairman of Community Relations (Toronto).

MRS. BEN-ZVI IN MOSCOW

Tel Aviv. (JCNS) — Mrs. Rachel Yannayit-Ben-Zvi, widow of President Yitzhak Ben-Zvi arrived in Moscow for a month's private visit to the Soviet Union. This is her first visit to Russia since she left her native country in 1908.

The visit was made possible through the efforts of the Russian Ambassador to Israel, Mr. Mikhail Bodrov.

In addition to visiting relatives in Kiev, Mrs. Ben-Zvi will visit agricultural settlements and has asked to be shown new technical and agricultural methods.

SLIHOT

The Saturday night before Rosh Hashana and the early mornings up to New Year we recite the Slihot — the prayers for forgiveness. For, the Jewish New Year, in contrast to the secular one, signifies not only the ushering in of a new period (nor is it the time for rejoicing only) but an occasion for soul-searching. Also, it is the solemn moment for weighing the balance of one's actions vis-a-vis his fellowmen.

* * *

Traditionally we recall, "We have been shamed more than any generation," for we usually compare our lives to those of our predecessors.

In days of yore, an hour or two after midnight, the beadle knocked upon the door of every Jewish nome with the traditional call, "Wake up, it is time for Slihot; it is time to ask for forgiveness!"

* * *

At times I do not accept literally the Slihot theme — that we are inferior to generations before us — at least, not in all areas of pursuit. If the sole meaning of piety is serving God, then we are not so pious as they. For there was within the men and women of those days a deeper affinity with the Supreme Being.

* * *

There were times when the dialogue between Thou and I was more intimate, more intense. However, today man is not less fallible in the relationship to his fellow-man.

The old responsa literature contains problems of human relations and queries which prove that man, even then, was not angel. THAT is why he is mortal.

* * *

Thus what is the deeper significance of Slihot? First, it is the time for self-analysis, for contemplating the wider vista of the world in which we dwell, for separating the important from the less relevant, and for stressing the perennial role of man — to do good and to realize that no matter how self-centered one may be, the concern for one's fellow-man ultimately is egotism in the sublime sense of the word.

* * *

Before the words, "We have been shamed more than any generation," the verse states, "We are guilty more than any people." Perhaps if we realize our collective guilt during World War II, we shall understand why our generation has been "shamed" more than any other. In this sense, we need forgiveness and reappraisal of our duties and tasks. THIS is Slihot.

SENATOR MORSE TO SPEAK HERE

Senator Wayne Morse, of Oregon one of the leading legislators in the United States Senate and a stalwart friend of Israel, will fly to Toronto on Tuesday, September 24th to be special guest speaker at the Inaugural Dinner of the Toronto Israel Bond Organization taking place at the New Murray House. This dinner will honour the Rabbis of Toronto whose leadership throughout the years on behalf of Israel's cause has been a prime factor in making Toronto "the world's leading city for per capita purchase of Israel Bonds." For the first time, The Inaugural Dinner will be a city-wide event, embracing the entire Jewish Community of Toronto.

The Inaugural Dinner which has become a tradition in the life of Toronto takes on a unique significance this year — the "Eve of Redemption Year" of the Israel Bond Campaign. In order to pay suitable tribute to the spiritual leaders of our congregations, all members of the Israel Bond family will be eligible to attend. Formerly this occasion was limited only to Guardians, Sponsors, Builders and Trustees of Israel. Special bronze plaques will be presented to the Rabbis in a dramtic ceremony of presentation, in recognition of their dedicated leadership in the Israel Bond effort.

Lawrence Shankman, General Chairman of the Toronto Israel Bond Organization will serve as Chairman of the Dinner. Chairman of the Arrangements Committee is Isadore B. Weinstein. A vastly expanded Committee including Bond Chairmen of all Synagogues and Organizations will serve as Table Hosts through whom reservations for the dinner can be made.

The dinner will mark the opening phase of the Toronto Israel Bond Campaign and will give further impetus to the High Holy Day Appeals towards a goal of $2,000,000 in cash sales.

Staunch friend of Israel: Oregon's Wayne Morse

TO SPEAK HERE: Rabbi Soloman B. Freehof, president of the World Union for Progressive Judaism who is universally recognized as the Halachic authority of the Reform movement, is coming to Toronto.

Dr. Freehof will speak at Holy Blossom on Monday evening, October 7th.

Report Reaches England

London, (JCNS) — Kamishliya, in northern Syria on the Turkish border, which once had a Jewish community of 400, is now "Judenrein." The exodus began two years ago, when it became impossible for local Jews, most of them farmers, to continue cultivating their land because of oppressions by the authorities

Last year, 300 elderly Jewish inhabitants of Kamishlya were on the verge of starvation and were unable to obtain help from their coreligionists in Damascus or Aleppo. They decided to leave Syria, but were not allowed to do so legally, so they left clandestinely, abandoning their possessions.

Kamishliya, known in Hebrew as Nissibine, used to be a centre of Talmudic learning, and is well-known in rabbinical history.

There are still 2,000 Jews in Damascus and about the same number in Aleppo. They live in a state of constant fear. The authorities will not allow them to leave, although a change of regime has, in the past, also sometimes brought with it a change in policy. Even then, however, anyone allowed to emigrate has been compelled to leave everything behind in Syria.

CATHOLIC – PROTESTANT – JEWISH BIBLE TO APPEAR IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, (CJN). — After centuries of interfaith discord the day of the all-faith Bible may not be far off — an agreed Catholic-Protestant version of the New Testament and a joint Catholic - Protestant - Jewish text for the Old Testament.

A couple of reasons are behind the surprising progress being made toward a one-Bible text. One is the archeological discoveries made in the Middle East during the past decade, such as the Dead Sea scrolls. Another is the more cordial interfaith spirit produced by the late Pope John XXIII and by the Second Vatican (Ecumenical) Council, which reconvenes in Rome Sept. 29.

Catholic leaders, for example, are prepared to concede now that immense first rate work went into such Protestant versions of the Bible as the literary classic known as the King James edition of 1611 and the Revised Standard Version of 1952.

What's more, documents issued at the Vatican as far back as the reign of Pope Pius XII have paved the way for Catholics to meet Protestant and Jewish scholars on new common grounds based on recent Biblical archeological discoveries.

In the United States, a team of more than 25 biblical scholars has brought in Jews as experts on the Old Testament.

The project, known as "The Anchor Bible," is under the direction of two Protestant scholars — David Noel Freedman, a Presbyterian, of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, and William Foxwell Albright, a Methodist, professor emeritus at Johns Hopkins University. Dr. Albright is the widely acknowledged dean of American Biblical archeologists.

Seven Catholics and five Jews are on the Freedman-Albright team, and others are Lutherans, Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians and a member of the United Church of Christ.

Israel To Build New Haifa Church

Haifa, (JCNS) — One of the unusual decisions taken by the late Pope John XXIII was to entrust to Jews the building of the new Church of the Annunciation in Nazareth — one of the holiest sites of Christianity.

Building work is being carried out by the Histadrat Concern Solel Boneh, and is already quite advanced. The church will be the largest Catholic church in the Orient, and is a highly complicated structure, from the technical point of view.

The giant concrete cupola under which 7,000 worshippers will be able to assemble, will weigh 10,000 tons. The foundations of its eight supporting columns sink to a depth of 45 feet into the rock. The building itself will rise to the height of a 20-storey skyscraper.

At the beginning the Vatican was rather doubtful of the ability of the Israeli contractors and builders to put up the new church, so they were given only the preliminary work on the building which was planned by the Italian architect, Signor Giovanni Muzio, of Milan.

As work progressed, however, and met with approval, Pope John decided to give permission for the Israelis to proceed with the construction of the whole church.

The excavation of the foundations yielded various archaeological finds which will be collected and put on show. The structure will preserve the remains of the five previous chapels, basilicas and churches built on the site, which date from the period of the early Christians to that of the Crusaders.

During the excavations, traces were found of an Israelite settlement. Some of the oldest finds go back to the early Bronze period.

The church is expected to be ready by 1965, but the completion of the marble facing, statuary and mosaics is expected to take at least 20 years.

Agitation In Morocco

RABAT (JCNS). — Israeli teachers are being sent to Morocco with forged French passports to teach in Jewish schools where the curriculum is "designed to inculcate the Zionist ideal and consecrate the existence of Israel."

This accusation was voiced by "Al Alam", the organ of the conservative opposition Istiqlal Party, in an article published here this week, reviving the traditional animosity towards Jews and Israel.

In the same article the paper also attacked the Government of King Hassan II because it had not set up a "boycott bureau" in Morocco to enforce the Arab League ban on economic, commercial and financial dealings with Israel, which the paper described as "the monstrous by-product of colonialism."

ALGERIA'S GOVERNMENT FIRES PRO-ISRAEL MEMBER

Paris, (JCNS) — When Prime Minister Ahmed Ben Bella becomes President of the new Algerian Republic — probably before September 15 — he is expected to carry out a major change in the composition of the Algerian Government, and in the process the present Minister of Information, Mohamed Belouane, is expected to lose his post.

The reason for this measure is Mr. Belouane's remarks two weeks ago when he announced the discovery of an "Israeli-inspired plot against the Algerian Government".

The flagrant antisemitic character of the declaration deeply shocked French left-wing quarters which sympathise with the F.L.N. and the Algerian socialist 'Government. Press editorials strongly ridiculed the absurd anti-Israeli and anti-Jewish accusations and highly embarrassed Mr. Ben-Bella, who is said to have rebuked his overzealous minister.

Synagogue At Montreal World Fair

Montreal, (Special) — Representations have been made to the organisers of the 1967 Word's Fair to be held here, for the provision of a Jewish house of worship along with the chapels of other faiths.

In reply to an approach by the Synagogue Council of Greater Montreal, the Commissioner General of the World's Fair said the suggestion would "be given very serious consideration when the time comes for us to consider the allotment of our various pavilions and other buildings such as chapels".

REPORT FROM BONN

By HERMAN LANGBEIN

GERMANY FINALLY READY FOR AUSCHWITZ TRIAL

The Public Prosecutor's office in Frankfurt-am-Main is preparing for the trial of 28 members of the S.S. who served in the extermination camp at Auschwitz.

Among the accused will be the last commandant of Auschwitz, Richard Baer; Dr. Viktor Capesius, accused of having been in charge of the camp's supplies of poison gas, "Cyclone B"; Josef Kiehr, the leader of the "disinfection squad," the euphemistic term for those S.S. men who had the task of supplying the gas chambers with poisonous gas; the acting leader of the "Political Department", the camp Gestapo who were responsible for indescribable tortures; and many ex-S.S. men, doctors and dentists.

During recent months a number of former S.S. men for whom warrants were outstanding have been traced. Others, however, are still being sought, among them the erstwhile Auschwitz camp doctor, Dr. Josef Mengele, who fled the Argentine after the local authorities had at last got round to dealing with a German extradition demand.

A notorious war criminal whose whereabouts are known but who cannot be taken into custody is Dr. Horst Schumann, formerly of the German Air Force. At his own request, he conducted sterilisation experiments in Auschwitz. Today he lives in Ghana and boasts openly of his friendship with President Nkrumah. Ghana refuses to extradite him.

Preliminary investigations have also been opened against the Auschwitz administrative chief, S.S. Major Burger, and it is possible that the number of accused in this long-delayed trial will increase still further.

All the indictment material has been collected and sifted, over 1,300 witnesses examined and a survey made of all the crimes committed in Auschwitz.

Hundreds of Auschwitz survivors from many countries have been heard, and the files in the case take up over 70 volumes. Even the largest courtroom in Frankfort would be too small for the hearing of such a case, which is expected to last several months and will no doubt be carefully watched by the international press. This one great trial is intended to make a clean legal sweep of all crimes committed in Auschwitz.

As a result of the proceedings a great task will also be faced by the Austrian courts. Investigations have been conducted into the activities of all S.S. men at Auschwitz whose names have become known. Several of them being Austrian citizens who cannot be extradited to Germany for crimes committed at the time in Poland, the Vienna Public Prosecutors office is busy with preparations for an Austrian Auschwitz trial.

On the strength of information laid against them by Auschwitz survivors and of documentary evidence supplied by the Frankfort Public Prosecutor's office, more than a dozen former S.S. men in Austria are at present under investigation. These include S.S. officers who had increased responsibilities in Auschwitz, like the camp doctor, Dr. Georg Franz Meyer, born in Vienna in 1917 and still resident there, practising medicine without let or hindrance.

To appreciate the functions of the S.S. medical men in Auschwitz one should recall what the first commandant of the camp, S.S. Obersturm bannfuhrer Rudolf Hoss, said at the time:

"In addition to their normal medical tasks the S.S. doctors in Auschwitz discharged the following duties; On arrival of transports of Jews they had to select male Jews fit for work and Jewesses according to the principles laid down by the Reich Medical Officer of the S.S. They had to attend the actual process of extermination in the gas chambers in order to supervise the prescribed use of Cyclone B gas by the disinfection squad. After the opening of the chambers they had to satisfy themselves that the extermination was complete.

"In Auschwitz, Birkenau and the labour camps they had the running job of removing and handing over the extermination, the Jews who had become unfit for work and would not presumably be restored to fitness within four weeks. Cases confined to bed had to be killed by injection, the others to be killed by poison gas in the crematoria."

The erection of gas chambers and crematoria was the most urgent and extensive activity of the central construction office of the Wagen-S.S. Two sub-leaders of this department, Walter Dejaco and Hermann Togerl, are among those involved in the investigations in Austria. Dajeco is today a builder in Reutte in the Tyrol, Tofferl in Linz.

Another Austrian S.S. leader at Auschwitz, Johann Schindler, lives in Amstetten, where he owns an autfitter's shop. This man had an unusual career at Auschwitz. He arrived there in 1940 as a modest corporal (Unterscharfuhrer); by 1943-44 he had become the adjutant of the commandant of Birkenau (the most extensive camp within the Auschwitz complex, where four crematoria were working full blast day and night).

Nearly five years have passed since information was first laid by survivors of the Auschwitz death camp. In Frankforte two Public Prosecutors have been busy for almost three years with nothing but the preparations for the Auschwitz trial. In Austria, too, the first denunciation by Auschwitz survivors reached the authorities three years ago.

The organs of the judicial system in Germany and Austria are not free from blame for having contributed to this long delay. The names of the principal criminals have long been known, the evidence available, at the very latest, since the Nuremberg Trials. No satisfactory explanation has yet been forthcoming as to why the Public Prosecutors have been waiting for denunciations from the ranks of the survivors.

CONSERVATIVE MARRIAGES ARE RECOGNIZED IN ISRAEL

NEW YORK, (JCNS) — Conservative rabbis are allowed to perform marriages in Israel, contrary to the impression that have emerged from a news item in the Israeli daily "Haaretz", according to Rabbi Wolfe Kelman, the executive director of the Rabbinical Assembly of America.

The news from Israel hinted that the Chief Rabbinate there had refused to allow Rabbi Myron Fenster, of the Moriah Synagogue in Haifa, to perform a marriage ceremony, and that it had not recognised the "semicha" (ordination) granted to him by the Jewish Theological Seminar of America (Conservative).

In an interview with the JCNS correspondent here, Rabbi Kelman said: "Rabbi Fenster has not been turned down; he was merely asked to take a test regarding his rabbinical qualifications, and I have every confidence that he would have passed the test". He said that the Rabbinical Assembly had been prepared to pursue the matter to a conclusion if necessary, but that it had become "academic in view of the fact that Rabbi Fenster, who had agreed to serve the congregation for only one year, is returning soon to the United States".

Rabbi Kelman added that Conservative "gittin" (divorces) had been accepted and were being accepted in Israel, and that a number of divorces had been approved the past three months. He also announced that the successor to Rabbi Fenster will be Rabbi Ephraim Frank Mandelkorn, a native of Montreal and a graduate of the class of 1944 of the Jewish Theological Seminary.

Rabbi Mendelkorn completed his undergraduate work at Yeshiva University, which is under Orthodox auspices, and there won the Talmud Prize. He is considered an outstanding Talmudist. Rabbi Kelman said. He served as a chaplain in the Canadian Army during the last war.

Blasts Fascists; Says He Is Proud To Be A Jew

Viareggio, (JCNS) — Guido Piovene, the well-known Italian author, journalist and novelist, last week became the subject of Italy's foremost literary prizes, second only to the famous Rome prize, "Premio Strega".

The Viareggio Prize, worth 10,000,000 lire is subsidised by the Olivetti typewriter company. When rumours spread a few weeks ago that Guido Piovene's latest novel "Le Furie" ("The Furies") was, among the many candidates the most probable winner, Signor Arrigo Olivetti, who represents his firm on the executive board of the Prize told the jury:

"As an anti-fascist and a Jew I wish to express strongly my opinion on the inopportuneness of awarding the prize to Piovene. Were the prize given to him I reserve to myself the right to draw the necessary conclusions." This was understood to mean that the Olivetti company would probably withdraw its financial support.

Signor Olivetti's objections were motivated by the fact that Piovene has been a lifelong and violent fascist and antisemite. In 1938 he wrote a series of anti-Jewish articles in the Milan paper, "Coriere della Sera."

Although, in 1961 and 1962, Piovene publicly atoned for his antisemitic and fascist stand, Signor Olivetti mantained that a prize known to be inspired by anti-fascist deals should not be awarded to a notorious fascist and racist author. After a long and dramatic debate the jury decided to award this year's prize to Antonio Delfini, a writer who died earlier this year, but then resigned en masse in protest against what they considered to be pressure from the sponsors of the Prize. The Prize is now likely to lapse unless a new jury willing to accept Signor Olivetti's uncompromising ideals is formed, or a new sponsor found.

Mystery Man In Berlin

VIENNA (JCNS). — Sensational reports in the Israeli press that a man arrested in West Berlin last year was a high-ranking S.S. officer wanted for war-time crimes against Jews, are wide of the mark, according to informed Austrian reports.

The Israelis had asserted that the man, Wilhelm Schmidt, was a former S.S. Obersturmbannfuhrer who held executive positions in various concentration camps, including Theresienstadt, during the war.

After escaping arrest in Austria, he was said to have gone to Israel and lived there for four years, practising as a doctor in Ashkelon and using false papers acquired from a doctor killed at Theresienstadt in 1943, Dr. Egon Alexander Fuerth. In 1953 he went to Argentina and thence eventually to West Berlin, where he was arrested last year.

Informed circles in Vienna bear out the fact that Schmidt masqueraded as Dr. Fuerth for years, but say that he apparently had no connection with any crimes against Jews. His arrest in Vienna in 1948 for trespass and fraud resulted in a 15-month gaol sentence. How he obtained Dr. Fuerth's papers is not known.

As far as can be ascertained in West Berlin, as well as here, Schmidt was detained in the West German capital only because he was working as physician illegally.

CAIRO URGES MOROCCO, LIBYA TO FIGHT ISRAELI

London, (JCNS) — Cairo has suggested that Morocco and Libya could do more to curb the pro-Israel activities of their Jewish community.

In a broadcast to North Africa, a Cairo radio commentator said the least these countries could do is to ensure that "the Jews in the Arab Maghreb area are not a support or a source of men or money to Israel and that no loophole is left for Israeli cultural or economic infiltration into their countries."

The scope of possible action is extensive, said the Cairo commentator. "It starts by closing the doors and windows to Zionism and by disarming any Zionist activity that may be undertaken by the Jews in the Arab Maghreb area.

"It ends in positive and effective participation in the work for the Palestinian cause in every field, including the armed battle which is inescapable for the liberation of Palestine."

ARGENTINA CLOSES JEWISH BANK TRUST

Buenos Aires, (JCNS) — A decree was issued by the Argentine Central Bank last week liquidating the Banco Israelita del Rio de la Plata, the foremost Jewish public financial institution in this country. As a result, a number of Jewish business firms operating on Banco Israelita credits are threatened with bankruptcy.

Three years ago, the bank was the centre of a court case when one of its clients was found guilty of using Banco Israelita credits for the purchase of goods to be smuggled into the country. The client, named Todres, and a number of bank directors were sent to prison.

Since then, a new board of directors has been trying to put the bank back on its feet and only recently announced plans for the augmentation of its capital. Just a week before the liquidation decree a promise of co-operation was given by the highest authority in the Central Bank.

The directors and D.A.I.A., the representative body of Argentine Jewry, have appealed to President Guido to cancel the decree and allow the rehabilitation of the Banco Israelita.

MURER & THE AUSTRIAN COURTS

CONGRESS PROTESTS

The Austrian Ambassador to Ottawa, in replying to the Canadian Jewish Congress' expression of concern against the acquittal of a former Gestapo official (Franz Murer) by a jury in Graz, stated that the protest has been forwarded to the competent authorities in Austria.

The Ambassador also said:

"In this connection, I should like to point out that the Public Prosecution had lodged an appeal against the acquittal arrived at by the jury in Graz, an appeal being admissible against an acquitting verdict according to Austrian criminal procedure. Consequently the case is at present before the Federal Supreme Court in Vienna which will have to determine whether the original acquittal remains in force, or not".

Murer was the Eichmann of the Vilna ghetto.

His acquittal has raised serious questions about the democratic atmosphere in present-day Austria.

FIGHTING THE DEAD

STALINISM IN DEATH

It is, perhaps, no surprise that the Soviet drive against Judaism should include the dead together with the living.

This is no less characteristic of official Soviet attitudes than their rigorously enforced line over interpretation of ancient history on the importance they attach to the "rehabilitation" of some victims and the posthumous degradation of others.

They resent this desire of the Jews to put themselves apart from their Gentile compatriots in death no less than in life.

It cannot be expected that Soviet officialdom should appreciate Jewish ritual in life and death. What can, however, be hoped for is that from outside and inside the Soviet Union efforts will be made to convince its leaders that they have nothing to lose and even something to gain by allowing the Jews their religious requirements.

Jews will not really be made more loyal by forcing them to lie with Christians and atheists even in death.

The emotional and intellectual inflexibility which attempts to make them do so is not really a source of strength.

The Russian people as well as the Jews suffered much under Stalin. Attitudes like this, intended to suppress dangerous nonconformities, are at the basis of Stalinism.

PUBLIC OPINION & SYRIA

MORAL VICTORY FOR ISRAEL

From The New York Times editorial:

"Israel and the West won a victory for morality in the United Nations Security Council, even if the Soviet Union did have the final word in vetoing the indirect condemnation of Syria for the "wanton murder" of two young Israeli farmers on the Israel-Syria frontier.

"The final 8-2 vote in the Council, with only Morocco joining Moscow against the United States-British resolution and Venezuela abstaining, indicated the abhorrence with which most of the world viewed this misdeed. It was, incidentally, the 101st time that the Soviet Union has exercised its veto to thwart the majority will.

Unsatisfactory as the upshot must be to Israel, it would be a tragic error for the Government of Premier Levi Eshkol to return to the old policy of immediate and heavy retaliation against border incidents without recourse to the U.N. Israel has gained in world esteem by its restraint, even if its plea for condemnation did not win in the Council."

* * *

From The Toronto Telegram:

"Should the Arabs wish to know why there is sympathy and admiration for Israel among Western nations, they have only to look at the evidence uncovered in the U-N Security Council on the incident that sparked the latest Syrian-Israeli exchange of fire.

"Two 19-year-old Israeli farmers from the border settlement of Almagor were ambushed and killed by Syrian infiltrators. American delegate Adlai E. Stevenson calls this wanton murder. It is nothing less.

". . . In their vengeful cynicism, the Syrians must gnash their teeth over this reaction, but they have themselves to blame. They cannot go on using Israel as a scapegoat for their internal troubles and expect civilized nations to remain neutral to the atrocities.

"The Syrian delegate to the U-N says the evidence at Almagor was faked, but this weaseling will get him nowhere. Britain, the U.S., Brazil and others say otherwise, and decent men everywhere will know how to judge kidnappers and murderers."

PUPPY LOVE IN MONTREAL

A recent issue of the New Statesman, a London political and literary weekly, carried a vignette by Mordecai Richler called. Making It With The Chicks which describes puppy love among Jewish adolescents in the Montreal of Richler's boyhood. It is puzzling to contemplate why the New Statesman, a publication of taste and sophistication, chose to carry as banal and trite story of pubertal and pre-pubertal schoolboyisms as has been put to paper, including the inevitable double-entendre of Helena Rubenstein and Max Factor and the purple passages from, How To Kiss Your Girl.

LAKE KRAKAUER' SASKATCHEWAN

The late Dr.Charles Krakauer of Toronto, who was killed in action with the Canadian forces in Italy in 1943, has had a Canadian lake named after him. It is located in the Lac La Rouge area about 180 miles north of Prince Albert, Sask and will be called Lake Krakauer. Captain Krakauer, who was in the medical corps, graduated from the medical school of the University of Toronto in 1938.

LAURA STERN

Many Toronto and Hamilton residents were grieved to learn last week of the sudden death of the youthful Laura (Rubinstein) Stern, wife of social worker William Stern and mother of two children, Her husband was just about to start his new duties as executive director of the Jewish Center and Community Council of Hamilton when, only two days before he was to begin, tragedy struck. His friends who knew and know him in the UJA; Welfare Fund, Holy Blossom Temple Social Action Committee, University Settlement, Canadian Assoliation of Social Workers, (and in Hamilton where the Sterns previously lived for four years) all mourn his loss with him.

ENCYCLOPEDIA PATRONS 60 YEARS AGO

Who were the Jews in Toronto and Montreal 50 years ago who were interested enough and who possessed the minimum means to be patrons of the Jewish Encyclopedia in English, — started in 1900 and completed 5 years later by the Funk and Wagnalls — now a classic? The list as printed in the last volume (number 12) provides an interesting group of names revealing who comprised the intellectual leadership of these communities two generations ago.

These were men who in all likelihood either paid in advance for their encyclopedia set or contributed a deposit as a token that they would purchase it on publication. There are 31 names from Toronto including Frank D. Benjamin (an Australian-born Jew who later left to live in England); Edmund Scheuer who lived to be Toronto Jewry's "grand old man"; Rabbi Solomon Jacobs of Holy Blossom Synagogue; Mark Geldzaehler, Hebrew educator and Torah reader of the same congregation; S. Simonsky, father of Forest Hill Village's former reeve; Louise Levinsky, one of the founders of the Brunswick Avenue Talmud Torah; Louis Gelber, now 85, the woollen importer and community leader, only survivor of the illustrious group.

Other names of subscribers whom the writer recognizes as related to present day Jewish Torontonians were: Ike (sic) Brodey, Mark Cohen, B. Danson, Henry Fogler, L. Gurofsky, Rev. I. Halpern, Paul Levi, S. Lurie, J. Singer Ephraim Palter, Charles Stone. Other names that may be familiar to readers are: Maurice Cohen, M. Frankel, S. Fremer, Rev. Louis H. Jordan, Samuel Lewis, Oscar B. Rose, Ernest and Julius Saunders, E. E. Sheppard, Jacob Taplitzki, Louis Waldman.

A PATRON FROM RAT PORTAGE

The city of Montreal provided 68 names which is not surprising in view of the greater discrepancy which then obtained as between the two cities, when Montreal's Jewry outnumbered Toronto's by more than two to one. There were two names from Hamilton: W. Goldberg and Frank Wolfe; one from Berlin (later Kitchener): H. S. Hallman; two from Saint John, N. B: Samuel Rabinowitz and A. Poyas; one from Quebec City: Louis Silverman; three from Ottawa: A. Harris, I. Slomensky, and E. Pullan—the same Elias Pullan who later moved back to Toronto.

WHO WAS J. F. MCLAUGHLIN?

The name Samuel D. Schultz is identified with Vancouver. This Mr. Schultz later became a judge, but the family intermarried and is now lost to Jewry. Niverville, Manitoba is represented by a Louis Serkau. Most intriguing of all is the fascinating entry which reads Rat Portage, Canada (no province mentioned)—Alexander Shragg. Another question is prompted by the name J. F. McLaughlin appearing among the Toronto patrons — who was he?

Winnipeg, despite the 1,156 Jews who lived there in 1901, is not mentioned in the list. The Montreal names include such familiar ones as Lyon Cohen, later to be the first president of Canadian Jewish Congress; S. W. Jacobs, later to be a long-term Member of Parliament; S. Kellert; A. Pierce (father of the present Canadian diplomat?) the De Solas; David Sperber; etc.

Of the three libraries in Canada who ordered copies of the Encyclopedia 63 years ago (it must be remembered it was the first such work to appear in the English language), one was from Quebec City (the Quebec Legislative Library), and two were from Toronto (the Public Library and the University Library).

BAYARD RUSTEM IN TORONTO

The man behind the scenes in the recent March on Washington of America's Negroes was Bayard Rustem. Rustem was the organizer who looked after the planning and arrangements for the historic move. Some Torontonians will remember him from the time he visited this city back in 1948 or 49. He appeared as speaker at a function of the National Council of Jewish Women held at their House on St. George Street.

The meeting was held to popularize what was then a bold and untried idea for Canada — a Fair Employment Practices law, which would outlaw race discrimination in jobs. The meeting was called by the National Council and Canadian Jewish Congress also had a part in it. It was attended by representatives of other faiths and was part of the campaign which finally culminated in the enactment of such a law only two or three years later in 1951.

Rustem was then sponsored by the Fellowship of Reconciliation, a pacifist group believing in non-violent action. He has just completed a trip through the South in which whites and Negroes travelled together in interstate busses in order to test the federal law that had banned Jim Crow practices in inter-state bus travel. This was the ancestor of the Freedom Riders.

KAFKA AND AGNON

By Oscar Berson

Apparently we have overlooked two important literary dates. In Israel those who know literature are celebrating the seventy-fifth birthday of S. J. Agnon who is still in the prime of creativeness.In Europe, some literary journals mention the fact that Franz Kafka would have been eighty-years old this summer had he not succumbed at the age of forty-one.

* * *

To the connoisseur of belles lettres, it may seem odd for me to associate these two literary dates. For what connection can there be between the old man of Hebrew letters, the acknowledged master of the Hebrew novel, and the Bohemian genius of Prague? However, I admit that this Kafka-Agnon marriage is not the product of my own imagination. It was brought to my attention by Edmund Wilson who, years ago, wrote in the New Yorker that he can't decide who of the two is greater. According to Wilson (who reads Hebrew) it is difficult to tell whether Agnon is as great as Kafka orKafka as remarkable as Agnon.

In my opinion, America's leading critic has captured the most characteristic trait of both, the Hebrew story teller and the Czech Jew who penned his tales in German: their Jewishness — optimism within the tragic.

It is difficult to imagine a writer more Jewish than Franz Kafka. Who of us has forgotten his TRIAL: the "shlemiel" symbolizing the helpless man of our time who doesn't understand the judges and their motives? Who has not grasped the prophecy of gloom of the concentration camp world which Kafka depicted?

* * *

Whenever I read Agnon or Kafka, and try to comprehend their profound humaneness, their pity of man's plight, I recall what a Hasidic rabbi is quoted to have stated at the destruction of European Jewry: I am sorry for God that he has to see THIS. . .

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

UNDERSTANDING AND ABSORBING

Preaching in Jabneh in the first century Eleazar ben Azariah drew attention to a verse in our Scriptural Reading this week which, he felt, required elucidation. "Assemble the people;" it runs, "men, women and children." We can understand, argues Eleazar, why the men were invited to the Public Reading of the Torah (Hakhel). They were expected to study. The women would listen. But why the children? "That those who brought them might receive a reward."

We can ignore the (formerly) understandable if (currently) regrettable downgrading of women in this homily. What interests us far more is Eleazar's attitude towards the children. The point about those bringing them receiving a reward unequivocally underlines their status. They are below the age of reason and within the age of rumpus.

Clearly, Eleazar never served as Rabbi of a typical family congregation nor preached a sermon nor read the Torah in the presence of "reward bringing" children. He was the Rabbi's Rabbi. Not for him the harsh social exigencies of suburbia and provincialia. He preached to a congregation of his peers — "in" the Rabbinical Academy "to" Rabbis.

Yet there is often something in the wisdom stemming from the Rabbinical ivory tower which confutes the harsh facts of life. We have reacted against the theoretical wisdom of the ancients in Judaism nowhere more than in this sphere. Whether it be junior congregations of Jewish education which terminates at Bar Mitzva, we are in the presence of what might be best described as infantilism — seeing the Jewish religion through the eyes of children, and, primarily, children who are totally unable to grasp the basic concepts of a mature Jewish approach towards life.

It is the corollary of a bankrupt adult Jewish society, and when the experts can finally be pursuaded to put down their statistics and consider the problem, they will almost certainly argue that the system cannot be as bad as all that, because the argue that the system cannot be as bad as all that , because the children bring the parents along and isn't that just too marvellous.

Pricisely the antithesis of the sequence suggested by Eleazar ben Azariah with whom, we regret, we must agree. A rich Jewish life, like any other rich life, starts with a rich adult life. Of course there was much at fault with the premodern view which saw children as miniature adults. There is, however, much more at fault, with the current view in which adults are seen as glorified children.

Perhaps Eleazar knew this. Perhaps he knew that precisely in those rich situations growing out of healthy family and group life, such as the Public Assembly described by our Torah reading this week, the child absorbs far more by a process of spiritual ozmosis —even when he makes a little noise — than by any other process.

Surely, those who, from a rich personal and family experience, bring along their children, receive a reward. The reward of knowing that one transmits the richness of Jewish life and the joy of being a Jew to those who, precisely because they do not admit of communication at a merely rational level, absorbs the eternal message in its maturest form into the deepest well springs of their being.

A CHRISTIAN IN WARSAW

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN

"I COME OF A GUILTY FAITH"

WARSAW, Poland (CJN D). — Among the cities of the world, Warsaw is set apart. This was a place of death, where n.c.o.'s lightly emptied trams to fill their quota of executions. It is a place that makes a nonsense of all the pretensions of the West. It is, despite its Government, perhaps the most Christian city in the West. It is also a place where no Christian can be quite easy. I dare not think what it must mean to Jews.

Warsaw arose four times against the Germans. One of the rising was Jewish. None of them much affected the course of the war.

This city was destroyed. The Germans did everything except sow salt here. Humanity stopped here. They fought for three days in the "ruins" of the Cathedral. Girls on the way to lunch will show you which sewer cover they used as an entrance to the freedom of the underground. London, Coventry, Dover and that sweet well-bombed countryside that lies between France and our seat of power, none of them offer parallel to Warsaw. This was a different dimension.

I am a Christian and I come of a guilty faith. I am diminished by what the Germans did here. When I go to India or Malaya I try to suggest that the West is yet a gentle place, they, the coloured ones, include Warsaw and Auschwitz in our civilisation and achievement.

So we have been celebrating the 20th anniversary of the furious resistance of the Warsaw Ghetto. There is a monument to these 60,000 survivors of the 500,000 crowded into this ordinary place, to the 60,000 who in the end turned and fought with no thought of survival. It stands in a huge square. Bare, scraped and empty. A child could tell that something terrible happened here.

The 60,000 died almost to a man and woman. The ghetto, when it was a district of Warsaw where Jews preferred to live, was a respectable place. It was built of heavy stone. It had heavy balconies and dark doorways. It smelled of rich food. It was Marylebone and Kensington. It was Bermondsey and it had a touch of Whitechapel, and most of the people who lived here simply could not believe that men could do what men in fact did.

The monument stands in this windy square. The architecture around it is clearly that of a people's democracy pushed for capital and marble. The old place which the Germans turned into a prison, a sort of perversion of a few city streets, all this has gone. War, the Germans, the Poles after the war, have taken a scraper and the ghetto has gone. There is simply that monument.

Mr. Patrick O'Donovan of the London Observer visited Warsaw inthe spring during the Ghetto observance. TheFollowing is part of an essay written especially for the JCNS and the Canadian Jewish News

Is It True?

Neturei Karta Recognize Finally Israeli Abattoir

Haifa, (JCNS) — The Neturei Karta (Guardians of the City) — Jerusalem's ultra-Orthodox Jewish sect — have agreed for the first time in their history to slaughter cattle in a Jewish abbattoir.

The sect — which has never recognised the existence of the Jewish State and firmly believes that the real Jewish State will only be established with the advent of the Messiah — has up to now used only Arab abbattoirs at the Galilee township of Shfar Am and at Nazareth, not recognising the kashrut of even the most Orthodox groups.

Because of this, the Neturei Karta were paying much higher prices for their meat — sometimes 20 per cent more than the normal kosher price for Israel as a whole. This was due to the cost of transporting the cattle to distant abbatoirs and then bringing the meat to Jerusalem.

Now, under an agreement just signed with the management of the slaughterhouse at Kfar Ata, the Neturei Karta have began to slaughter cattle in a Jewish abbatoir, thus creating a revolutionary development in the life of the Jerusalem sect.

A Message... From The Weinsteins

At this moment, when we enter the New Year 5724, all humanity senses the impact of the Great Day. We are all involved in ONE human destiny. The Jewish New Year prayer is now the prayer for ALL.

"Our lips proclaim the glory of God, by whose righteousness we will survive. In mercy He will sustain us".

The beginning of the New Year reminds us of our link with the Holy Land. It is incumbent upon us to recite blessings upon new fruit which always, in our liturgy, symbolizes the connection with the Land of Israel.

In a more concrete way, we forge this link by purchasing Israeli bonds and by helping develop the economy of the Land of Israel so that the message for co-existence among peoples shall come from the City of Peace.

HAPPY NEW YEAR.

EXPAND ACTIVITIES FOR SEASON

The challenge of Toronto's "Eve of Redemption Bond Drive" has spurred the Toronto Women's Division of the Israel Bond Organization to a greatly expanded program of activities to meet the increased needs of Israel. The Women's Division Chairman Mrs. Irving Posluns was hostess for the opening Executive meeting at her home last week attended by Presidents and Bond Chairmen of the major women's organizations in the community.

In reports of planned activities for all the various integral units of the Women's Division presented by their representatives to the executive committee, it was evident that this year's events will surpass in scope any past year's program of activities. "Linked in mutual friendship and dedicated to the interest of the State of Israel and the Jewish people, the women of Toronto are expressing their support of the Israel Bond program in a manner which reflects tremendous credit to the community at large" stated Mrs. Posluns in summing up the ambitious programs outlined by group representatives. "I'm sure we can look forward to the most successful year in our history for the 1963 Israel Bond Women's Division Drive."

The four Canadians are: Leah Laiman of 118 Cline Avenue S. Hamilton; Bella Salit of 1500 Ducharne Avenue, Montreal; Bryna Kalifon of 2200 Barclay Avenue, Montreal; and Ann Greenberg of 5462 Mountain Sights, Montreal.

ALEPPO JEWISH CEMETERY TO BE SOLD?

Tel Aviv, (JCNS) — The Syrian authorities have called for tenders for the purchase of plots of land in Aleppo's Jewish cemetery.

According to information reaching here, the Aleppo Municipality has included the Jewish cemetery in its development plans for the city. Other sources said that the Aleppo Jewish community is without any influence and therefore could not oppose the move.

Meanwhile, the Lebanese authorities are said to be about to promulgate a special law forbidding Lebanese citizens to visit Israel. The law was promised after sharp attacks against the Government had been voiced in Parliament and the local press, complaining that Lebanese Jews used to visit Israel via Cyprus and Turkey without having their passportts stamped.

The new law will include a special paragraph forbidding Foreigners living permanently in Lebanon to visit Israel. The same intediction will also apply to Lebanese Jews.

It gives us great pleasure to express our appreciation to the Jewish Community of Toronto for the warm and heartening cooperation in helping us to establish the Beth Jacob High School, which offers our daughters a unique Torah education.

The enrollment this semester has been greater than all expectations. This is a tangible symbol of the friendship and confidence that the community has proferred to our school.

It is our fervent prayer that this new year will usher in a spirit of understanding of Torah values and a flourishing and growth of Torah Institutions.
May the Almighty grant all a Happy and Healthy New Year.

HUMAN RELATIONS

Untruthful Boy Friend

DR. ROSE N. FRANZBLAU

QUESTION: I have been going out steadily with a young man of 19 for a year. Now I've grown fond of him and I'm starting to think about settling down with him.

This boy had trouble in high school and graduated a term late with a general diploma. He is not stupid. He admits that school didn't matter to him then. When I met him he told me he went to college. It wasn't until recently that he told me that he didn't, and that he had difficulty in high school.

Now he has taken a five-year apprenticeship with one of the best unions in the country and he will be making a nice living. He studies for the school he attends and is doing nicely.

I am 17 and will be attending a municipal college. I am considered bright and I plan to become a teacher. I've never told my parents or any of my friends about this boy's educational past.

My question is: Will my parents and friends think less of him because of his past difficulties?

ANSWER: You are both still in the process of growing and changing. What you feel today may be different from what you felt yesterday, or what you will feel tomorrow.

Perhaps what you are really saying, without realizing it, is that things have kind of settled down and become boring. To add a spark to the relationship, you have to move it onto another level and change it in some way. At 17, you are probably far to young to think of a serious association. This boy, at 19, may be even younger, both emotionally and practically.

To correct a mistake does honor to a person.

The failure in high school and the fact that he did not get an academic diploma should certainly not be held against this boy. Likewise, training in an apprentice program of a good union is a fine preparation for a life work.

But a person who lies to get what he wants and then, having gotten another involved, finally tells the truth, is not behaving honestly, and sheds doubt on any information that he claims is true.

You might argue that he is still so ashamed of his past school difficulties that he can only tell the truth to those who like him.

But that argument suggests that the emotional factors which caused his original difficulty may still be operating today.

* * *

Your very questioning of this boy's past and wondering how it would affect your family and friends indicates that you are about ready for a change. You may be looking forward to associations at college with people who are more like you. Having been tied down for a year to one boy, you may now be looking forward to the freedom, which you really denied yourself, of meeting new boy friends. This is all to the good.

If your boy friend has the character you think he has, an honest confrontation about your feelings will be respected, and not be taken as a rejection of him. When youngsters your age break up, it is because each of them wants to, deep down.

NO NAZI CANDIDATE

LUTON (JCNS) — There will be no Nazi candidate after all in the forthcoming by-election in Luton caused by the elevation of Dr. Charles Hill to the House of Lords. Colin Jordan instructed 34-year old Maurice Atkins to withdraw out of fear that he would prove menely a freak candidate. Atkins told local reporters that he was "very disappointed" by the decision of his leader not to stand. But the policy of the British National Socialist Movement was to contest elections "if we think we could put up a good show".

NEW CHIEF FOR INTELLIGENCE

TEL AVIV (JCNS) — The Israeli Cabinet has appointed a new Intelligence Chief in succession to the former head of the security services who resigned following divergencies with Mr. Ben Gurion on the campaign against German scientists in Egypt.

The new chief has filled the post temporarily for the last five months. His name is being kept a secret.

Mizrachi Protests

ZURICH (JCNS) — Strong condemnation of the proposed introductions of a non-kosher kitchen aboard the Zim Line's vessel Shalom was voiced in a resolution adopted by the 100 delegates to the European conference of Mizrachi-Hapoel Hamizrachi, which took place here.

The delegates, including the Chief Rabbis of Vienna, Rome, Amsterdam and Paris, pledged themselves to make every effort to protect the Babbath and kashrut aboard the ships of Zim Line and the aircraft of El Al. They also voted to establish more religious educational institutions and to encourage aliya from the world.

The problem of Algerian repatriates in France constituted a separate item on the agenda. It was agreed that special attention should be given to providing for their religious needs, specially the establishment of educational institutions.

U.S. JEWRY CONCERNED OVER AGED

New York, (JCNS) — The problem of what is euphemistically called the "senior citizen" in America has become acute in the Jewish community.

At one time, child care was the main concern of Jewish philanthropic organisations, but now, community programmes for the aged have increased significantly, while there has been a sizable drop in the number of children served by child care agencies.

The Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds reports in its year book that problems of the aged affect between 20 and 50 per cent of all families agencies receiving help of one kind or another from Jewish family. In 75 homes reporting to the year book's editors, there were almost 12,000 residents in 1961, twice the number recorded for 1945.

It is not confined to America's Jewish population. There has been a marked increase in the percentage of old people in the total American population, resulting from progress in medicine and a decline in work accidents — two of the many factors which have changed the demographic character of the American population as a whole.

Yet, as a spokesman for the C.J.F.W.F. pointed out, "people are not only getting older, they are getting sicker too". Infirmary facilities take up from one half to two-thirds of the available beds in some homes for the aged.

The fact that child care agencies served 20 per cent fewer children in 1961 than in 1946 is because of the replacement of orphanages by other methods of care for children whose parents cannot care for them. Also, the same factors that have made for greater longevity have reduced the instances where children have become orphaned.

Rebuild Piotrkow Synagogue

Warsaw, (JCNS) — The Polish Ministry of Art and Culture has assigned the sum of 7,000,000 zlotys towards the rebuilding of the mediaeval synagogue of Piotrkow, it has just been announced rere. It will house the local Museum of Art and History.

The synagogue was destroyed by the Nazis when the entire Jewish community of the city was murdered in one mass liquidation in 1941.

REASONS WHY
Good government deserves YOUR support

1 Fair pay for all. Action by your Conservative Government set minimum legal wages for the protection of employed persons.

2 Equalized grants for public and separate school supporters. A new method of awarding grants will ensure complete equalization of revenues for all elementary schools.

3 Assistance allowance for widows and unmarried women. Your Conservative Government provides allowance up to $65 a month for those between 60 and 65 who qualify.

4 Portable pensions for everyone. A FIRST in North America. If you change jobs, your pension will NOT be forfeited. Your savings and employer contributions move with you. Employment of older workers has been encouraged. More and bigger incomes at retirement will be available for Ontario people.

5 21 age limit lifted for apprenticeship in construction. A limit that prevented many from qualifying as journeymen in the trades removed.

6 Medical care for everyone. A new plan by your Conservative Government makes medical services coverage available regardless of age or health. For those unable to pay, coverage will be provided by your Provincial Government.

7 Old age, blind and disabled allowance boosted to $65 monthly. This increase is just one of many in your Conservative Government's welfare program.

8 More parks, more visitors, more recreation. Because of your Conservative Government there are now 81 provincial parks for your enjoyment.

9 Increased financial aid to students. A student aid program now enables more students to obtain a higher education. Millions of dollars in scholarships, bursaries and loans were made available to deserving students in 1962.

10 Compensation for injured workers. Those earning up to $6,000 a year (was $5,000) can apply for Workmen's Compensation. Waiting period is only 3 days (was 5).

Canada Zionist Leaders Present Memo To Ottawa

A joint delegation representing the United Zionist Council of Canada and Canadian Jewish Congress met with Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson for the first interview by the Jewish Community's leaders with the new government head since he assumed office. With the Prime Minister was the Secretary of State for External Affairs, the Hon. Paul Martin.

The delegation met the Prime Minister to discuss the present difficulties in the Middle East. The interview was sought in view of the fact that the Prime Minister will head Canada's delegation to the United Nations at the opening session of the 18th General Assembly later this month.

Led by Joseph N. Frank and Michael Garber, QC., presidents respectively of the United Zionist Council and of Congress, the delegation submitted oral and written representations ". . . on matters of great concern to the Jews of Canada, as Canadian citizens, where particular Middle Eastern questions are involved, touching on the security and the well-being of the people of Israel and the Middle Eastern neighborhood as a whole . . ."

In its submission, the delegation stressed the Syrian-Israel border tension; the imbalance of arms, a development which ". . . threatens even more than individual incidents the long-term stability of the area." Discussions also centered on the unresolved Arab refugee problem and its implications for the future.

The members of the delegation, in addition to Messrs. Frank and Garber were: Professor Maxwell Cohen, Q. C., Chairman, Joint Inner Public Relations Committee, U.ZC.-C.J.C.; Monroe Abbey, Q.C.; Lavey Becker; Hyman Bessin; Mrs. S. Blanshay; Isadore M. Bobrove, Q. C.; Saul Cherniak, M.P.P.; Mrs. Nina Cohen; Lawrence Freiman; Sol D. Granek; David Harvey; Sam Harvey; Sidney Harris, Q. C.; Saul Hayes, Q.C.; Harold Lande; Q.C.; Jacob M. Lowy; Marvin Needelman; Sam Sokoloff; Harry Steiner; Joel Sternthal; and Rabbi S. M. Zambrowsky.

Mr. Makowski by profession a veterinarian living in Warsaw survived the holocaust by posing as a German. He and another friend now a Torontonian were both serving in the German army as underground agents till the end of the war. They were never discovered despite their Jewishness and profound attachment to Judaism.

McGILL UNIVERSITY RECOGNIZES RELIGIOUS RIGHTS OF STUDENTS

Montreal, (CJN). — Rabbi Dr. Samuel Cass, Director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, advised the Canadian Jewish Congress that recognition of Rosh Hashanah was accorded this year in the Calendar of McGill University "Student's Information 1963-64". He reports statement in connection with the announcement of registration in upper years of Science and Arts scheduled for September 19 and September 20 to the effect that "students prevented from registering on this day by religious observances may register on September 18th".

While accomodations were made in past years in similar conflicts of dates, this marks the first time that the announcement accomodating Jewish students in the observance of the High Holy Days is included in the University Calendar.

In the School for Teachers at MacDonald College in Montreal, which has scheduled school and College activity tests for the opening day of lectures coinciding with the first day of Rosh Hashanah (September 19th), arrangements will be made to administer the tests to Jewish students at another suitable time.

Recognition has always been given in the School of Teachers for Jewish Students to absent themselves from classes on Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur.

An announcement to this effect will be made when all students are convened at the opening Assembly of the School on September 18th.

1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- teaspoon grated lemon rind
4 whole egges
4 egg yolks
